圖書摘要：

In the middle of the night, Rabbit wakes up and finds his daddy isn't in bed. He wakes his mother, who says that his father has probably gone into Rabbit's room to sleep. Now Little Sister is wide-awake, too. And together they search. Daddy is not in Rabbit's room, but the belt from his bathrobe is, so he must have been there. But where is he now? Rabbit and Little Sister set out on a hunt for Daddy, and anything can happen at night...

As a mother and child canoe along the Alaskan Beaufort seacoast, they observe a baby walrus held close to its mother's spotted chest, sea lions snuggling, and the Northern Lights shimmering above. David Diaz's powerful, lush illustrations bring to life the majesty of the ocean and skies—and the vulnerability of the ocean's biggest and smallest inhabitants, from the orca to the puffin. The book ends with the human mother and her sleeping child gliding home for the night. "Good night, Mother Ocean, good night."

The story is a young boy who finds the true meaning of Christmas in the most unlikely of places. Eddie wants a bicycle for Christmas, but his mother knits him a homemade sweater instead. His disappointment is obvious, but a magical journey makes Eddie realize that the sweater is far more than it seems. Ultimately it teaches him that the true meaning of a gift is that it is given with love.

This little girl wants her very own miniature wild animal. Anything from a little snappy happy crocodile or a tiny trundle rumble elephant, to a pocket-sized grizzly bear. But as her big brother explains, a real wild animal would make a terrible pet. You can't nuzzle a crocodile, or tickle a wild elephant, and a grizzly bear belongs in a cave not a pocket! But there's one pet, a tiny pet, that loves to be tickled and cuddled. It's like a tiger, only much smaller. This is a delightfully rhythmic tale, bursting with imagination, and a playful introduction to a world of wild animals.

The mailman fell into the birdbath all because of a small little leak in a garden hose. Yes, a garden hose. A moose, a goose, a flock of crows, a bee, a lawnmower, and some other things were also involved....
